LABOR CAUSES STORMY NIGHT BRITISH HOUSE

Renewal of Uproar Over
Government's 8-Hour
Miners' Bill
MINERS GET HELL,
SHOUTS LABORITE

Premier Baldwin Replies to Taunts That He Is Financially Interested

LONDON, June 29.—Premier Stanley Baldwin faced the House of Commons in a new role last night when he defended himself against intimations that because he was the holder of many shares of stock in Baldwin's Limited (a big iron firm) he was personally interested on the side of the mine owners in the coal controversy.

There was a renewal of the uproar which marked the earlier proceedings in the House, as the government's eight-hour miners' bill which provided second reading. Labor members shouted for Baldwin—"we want the Prime Minister."

Miners' Getting Hell
The speaker tried to calm the storm which broke over the head of Mr. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, who rose to reply for the government. The speaker appealed for fair play, but the voice of the Glasgow Laborite, O. D. Macdonald, who sits the din—"The miners are not getting fair play, the miners are getting hell."

Then a Labor member charged the right of Stanley Baldwin to have a vote in a matter of this kind because he was holder of 2,000 shares in Baldwin's Limited. "Cries of 'shame' came from the Conservative and Liberal benches."

The Prime Minister sprang to his feet. "The order of this debate," he declared, "has been arranged with full knowledge of the opposition parties and that order has been departed from."

Bulk of His Possessions
Taking up the charge made against him that he had declared to the members of the royal commission what should be put in their report, he characterized it as an unqualified misstatement. "I am not a shareholder in Baldwin's Limited," he declared, "I am a shareholder in the bulk of what I have."

Then alluding to the fact that the statement had been made in a newspaper, by George Lansbury, labor member for Poplar, the Premier continued:

"What the statement failed to tell was that I had not taken advantage of the war here."

There were ironic labor cheers and angry Conservative protests, until several laborites shouted: "Hear what he has to say."

For the British Industry
The House listened silent and Mr. Baldwin went on: "If I take advantage of the war, I might think of it as an advantage to the British industry."

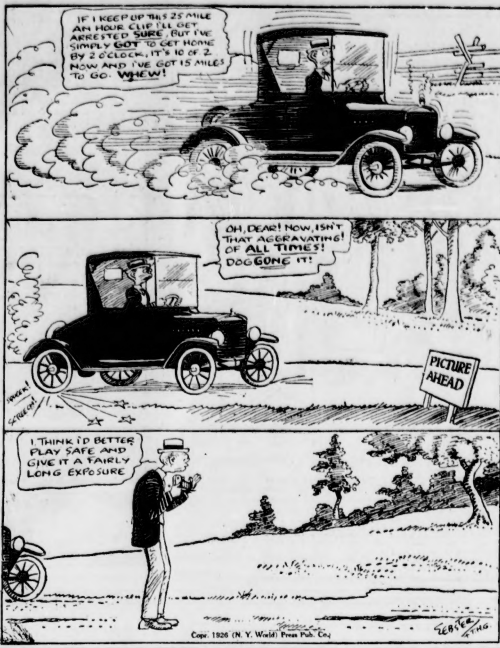

He said he was not a shareholder in Baldwin's Limited, but he was a shareholder in the bulk of what I have. "I have always been a shareholder in the bulk of what I have."

"That large block of shares on which I could have realized a fortune during the war, I don't think anyone would take off my hands. And Mr. Lansbury forgot to mention that for five years I have received nothing from them."

"I expect to receive anything from them for years to come."

"Whether it be the honorable member believe that the coal industry business of mine, because it happens to be a portion of the property, contains some coal property, which is a small portion of the whole business, whether they believe because of that I shall fall so far as my own estimation cloud Conservative as the honorable member here who raised this point. I do not believe the House of Commons either side, believe I could fall so far as my own estimation of the estimation of men whose opinion I value."

The Timid Soul

premier's speech was drowned in cheers.

Mr. Bridgeman made several vain attempts to speak after the Prime Minister, but was always shouted down. Many points of order were raised, and the speaker declared that as the opposition would not listen he would proceed to the division.

Still the storm assailed the Premier. The Laborite tried to sing the "Red Flag," but the speaker promptly stopped them.

The bill passed its second reading by a large majority and the declaration of the division finished was greeted with renewed cries of "shame."

"Bentley's hasn't criminal life we have here," said some of the Conservative members who had voted against the bill.

"Continuance of the state of emergency is proclaimed in the official gazette, owing to the non-settlement of the coal miners' strike."

A meeting of the executive of the Miners' Federation yesterday strongly affirmed its previous policy of opposition to any change of hours or reduction in wages.

A. J. Cook, secretary of the federation, announced that the executive today will consider the question of the withdrawal of the safety men from the mines.

Then the position seems no longer as it was weeks ago.

Lord Londonderry, one of the great coal magnates, in a speech at Belfast yesterday, declared he had no hope of settlement. He said:

"Speaking with all the responsibility I possess, I am bound to say that until Cook and Smith (president of the Miners' Federation) modify their attitude, or the miners choose other leaders, the present deadlock must continue."

Lord Londonderry blamed exactly what he called the harmful political interference of the Miners' Federation and the interference of this government.

The House of Commons last night passed the second reading of the miners' bill by a vote of 154 to 104.

Miners' Federation members last night passed the second reading of the miners' bill by a vote of 154 to 104.

MRS. M'PHERSON QUITE HOSTILE

Says She Will Sue Those Who Belittle Her Story

LONDON, June 29.—Alone Sophie McPherson's story of having been kidnapped by two men and a woman and held prisoner since she disappeared out of sight at Ocean Park on May 15, has attracted the keenest interest in the police and district attorney's office.

The woman, who has been held in custody since the kidnapping, has been held in custody since the kidnapping.

Mr. McPherson, however, contends that the burden of proof falls upon those who doubt her. And from the verandah of a secluded beach resort where she went into temporary refuge today, the woman said she was preparing to strike back locally at those who have cast "blinking insinuations" upon her story.

The exclamation said two libel suits, each seeking $250,000 damages, were being drawn up by her attorneys. She would not divulge who she would name in the suits.

CRICKET SCORES IN OLD COUNTRY

LONDON, June 29.—Yorkshire defeated Surrey by one innings and thirteen runs in their scheduled match at Sheffield yesterday.

Yorkshire, on the winning team, broke in to the century class with 151 runs.

Nottingham secured a margin of 140 runs over Northants at Dover, securing 215 and 343 to Northampton's 24 and 245.

A benefit match for Skidwell, Leicestershire's wicket-keeper, on his home turf, resulted in a defeat for the home eleven. Nottingham gained the victory by a margin of 45 runs.

Nottingham secured a century for Notch with 118.

Middlesex took the measure of Gloucestershire at Bristol by no less than 227 runs, registering 369 in the first innings to Gloucestershire's 247.

In their second turn at bat the visitors scored 245 for seven wickets and notched their second innings.

Hants defeated Essex at Southend by six wickets.

Court Etiquette Changed Since King William's Day

Nowadays Being 'Presented' Is Not the Order of 50 Years Ago

LONDON, June 29.—The first court of the season was held recently at Buckingham Palace. Presently, however, are being presented on account of the arrival of the king.

Nowadays, being "presented" is no way the order of 50 years ago. The "gracious thoroughness" of royal patronage every arrangement for the comfort of those present inside Buckingham Palace, and the amenities held the occasion out of the ordinary.

Go into the hall on a court night and you will see in the sixty advancing months, debilitated as are the courtiers, some of the most beautiful women in the world. They are all, of course, in the prime of life, and are all, of course, in the prime of life, and are all, of course, in the prime of life.

Compare this scene and tranquility with the agitation that presided over the first court of the season. The king was then a young man, and the queen was a young woman. They were both in the prime of life, and were both in the prime of life.

There have been many alterations in the etiquette of the court of the king and queen. There is no king of the court of the king and queen. There is no king of the court of the king and queen.

Writing in a friend in 1921, a young lady presented on her marriage, a young lady presented on her marriage, a young lady presented on her marriage.

King William's Day.—The king and queen, "being" very near the entrance to the Throne Room, as the king and queen, "being" very near the entrance to the Throne Room, as the king and queen, "being" very near the entrance to the Throne Room.

Woman of Fifty, Today is Modern as Her Daughter

No Longer Do We Reckon Age in the Terms of Years

By J. H. MURRAY

Never since time began has the woman of fifty been so fortunate as now. It is the time of her life when she is at the height of her powers, when she is at the height of her powers, when she is at the height of her powers.

No longer do we reckon age in the terms of years. No longer do we reckon age in the terms of years. No longer do we reckon age in the terms of years.

There is no mould on her face or on her mind. Both physically and mentally she is as active as ever she was. Her hair may have threads of gray, but it is as beautiful as ever she was. Her face may have wrinkles, but these do not mar its beauty. Her skin is as smooth and as free from blemishes as ever she was.

Orange-CRUSH

From Sun-Bathed Orange Groves

THERE'S nothing like a sparkling, fruity drink filled with flavor of the luscious orange. That's Orange-CRUSH—just the purest, finest, fruit-flavored drink in the world! From California's sun-bathed orange groves it comes.

And the Orange-CRUSH Krinkly Bottle with the name Orange-CRUSH blown right in is always your guide to the genuine.

Drink sparkling Orange-CRUSH any time—everywhere. Here's what makes it so good:—To healthful, carbonated water is added the juice of luscious oranges—the delicate flavor of their peel—the zesty tang of the fruit acid found in oranges, lemons and limes—a pure food color, such as you use in your cakes and candies—pure cane sugar. A truly delightful, true-fruit drink.

Imitations Galore—Only One ORANGE-CRUSH

Don't let the unscrupulous or inexperienced dealer cheat you with an inferior imitation for the sake of a fraction of a cent more profit per bottle.

Orange-CRUSH is such a delicious drink—so pure and healthful that you deserve to get it when you ask for it. And the dealer who does not hand out a substitute deserves to be patronized. He pays more for Orange-CRUSH than for inferior imitations, but the Krinkly Bottle builds constantly increasing sales for him. In the end, Orange-CRUSH profits are always greater because Orange-CRUSH is the most popular fruit-flavored drink in the world today.

"first thing in the morning"

It is a most refreshing and healthful practice to drink first thing in the morning, a glass of water sparkling with a 'dash' of Eno's 'Fruit Salt'. There is no safer and surer way than this to clear the system of impurities and keep you fit and eager for the work and play which fill each day.

But it must be ENO'S—never varying in quality and purity. Eno's—containing nothing that may possibly do you harm. Eno's—with its fifty years' reputation. Eno's—approved and used by doctors and nurses. So, for your health's sake, be sure you get

THE KING'S VISIT
When they had obtained the consent of Queen Guinevere, King Arthur, with his knights, went to the sea. They should see about him. Under the sea.
It is not difficult to see. If you are safe from any evil of the sea, for I have pronounced the magic words over you which will guard you always. But you shall be twice guarded.

When that he removed a heavy silver ring from his finger and gave it to King Arthur.
"This bears the inscription of 'MAY WE BE TOGETHER'." You are safe. Now, sister Guinevere, may we depart while you watch over Perceval, till our return?"

FRED DIE THE SHEIK

A Arrival on Deck

WHICH ONE OF THESE TWO DO YOU LIKE BEST? WHICH IS BETTER?

I KINDA LIKE THE ONE WITH THE SUIT AND HAT. BUT THE OTHER ONE ISN'T SO BAD EITHER.

HELL, I'D LIKE THEM BOTH. BUT I'D LIKE THE ONE WITH THE SUIT AND HAT BETTER.

WELL, IF YOU LIKE THEM BOTH, THEN YOU'VE GOT TO PAY FOR BOTH. BUT IF YOU ONLY LIKE ONE, THEN YOU CAN PAY FOR THAT ONE ONLY.

SAID THE MAN IN THE SUIT AND HAT. HE WAS A LITTLE BIT OF A SHEIK, BUT HE WASN'T A BAD ONE.
